The Soil Moisture Active Passive, or SMAP, satellite is designed to image 1,000-kilometer-wide swaths of Earth from a near-polar, sun-synchronous orbit 685 kilometers above Earth’s surface. How many days will it take SMAP to image all of Earth’s surface? *You may disregard any overlap that may occur.